

Announcement

The Editorial Board of the European Journal of Vascular and Endovascular Surgery is looking for an Editor to take responsibility our on-line journal: EJVES Extra.

EJVES Extra acts as a companion to the printed Journal and provides our readership with additional information. This includes short reports, additional datasets, colour illustrations, short videos, forthcoming meetings and their abstracts. The Editor will be responsible for editing all content accepted for publication by the Senior Editors, in conjunction with the Language Editors, if required.

The successful applicant will be responsible for developing the future strategy of EJVES Extra, including new developments such as CME links with articles in the printed Journal. The Editor will also work with the Publishers on various marketing campaigns and brand awareness. The successful applicant requires enthusiasm, knowledge of the web environment, previous experience of peer-review and a track-record of publications. Previous editorial experience would be desirable but not essential.

Please email your application, including a CV summarising your relevant experience as an attached word document, to the Senior Editor at <http://ejves@elsevier.com>.
